Graduate School of Management

Lecturer in Finance

The Graduate School of Management at the University of California, Davis, seeks temporary instructors to teach one or more Finance courses for academic year 2016-2017. A description and tentative schedule details for the course are listed below.

Financial Theory and Policy (205): Covers the fundamental principles of corporate financial management and capital markets. Major topics include general valuation methods for risky cash flow streams, capital budgeting, asset pricing models, risk management, equity financing, debt financing, and dividend policy.

This 3-unit course is tentatively scheduled for one section in winter 2017 at our Davis location and two sections in spring 2017 at our Sacramento and San Ramon locations.

Positions are contingent on funding and pending administrative approval. Salary is based on ability and experience. Applicants should have a terminal degree. Potential candidates should submit their application online only. Please submit a vitae, evidence of teaching ability and contact information for three references. Applications are accepted on a continuous basis for future temporary openings, so the position will remain open until filled. Only completed files will be reviewed.

Applicants should submit their application and supporting materials via our online recruitment system at https://recruit.ucdavis.edu/apply/JPF00487.

This position has no closing date and, as such, will remain open until filled. However, the Committee expects that an initial consideration of candidates' applications will be completed no later than June 30, 2016.

Unit 18 Lecturers are governed under a collective bargaining agreement (American Federation of Teachers (AFT) - Non-Senate Instructional Unit). Under this contract, once a lecturer accumulates enough quarters of service, the lecturer can be reviewed for a Continuing Lecturer position.
